The Eloquence of Print

The printed message is the Ambassador of Commerce. Printing of distinguished appearance reflects credit upon the merchant who uses it.

Pillans & Wilson were printers when George III. was king. Everything that a fine tradition can do to give dignity and distinction to the printed word is inherent in Pillans & Wilson methods.

Along with these, every modern improvement has been adopted that can couple artistic perfection with labour-saving and money-saving.

For one example—A brightly coloured carpet, an oil-painting, a case of jewels or a box of confectionery, can be photographed by the colour process and mechanically reproduced in a small number of printings with perfect resemblance to the original. Elaborate productions of this kind are as much a speciality of the house as the old-style, dignified letterpress printing—which first made Pillans & Wilson printers of reputation.

IN YOUR BUSINESS

there must be something which needs to be printed. Ideas and suggestions can be supplied for any piece of printing matter which will give it the coveted hall-mark of distinction.
